

Business French (Minimum Entry level A2 or B1)

20 hrs

Business French focuses on specific tasks that you are more likely to encounter in professional situations. These may not occur as frequently in a general language class, so for practice with target areas such as writing emails, making business calls, negotiation, and scheduling meetings, Business French is the right choice. This course utilises coursebooks and materials that are specially designed to introduce business-relevant topics and related vocabulary, while continuing to improve the four key language skills of speaking, listening, reading, and writing.

International career

A business French course prepares you for the world of work not only by developing your speaking skills but also through improving core areas like communication and teamwork. Boost your CV and your leadership skills in the nowadays multicultural work environment.

21st Century Skills

French tweets

To be a great communicator you'll need superb 21st Century Skills as well as great speaking skills. Business French classes give learners maximum opportunity to develop their language skills through specific, business-related scenarios such as negotiations, presentations, and live communication.

Official exams

A business French course at French Tweets can also prepare you to take official language proficiency exams (the DELF or the DALF) with confidence and ease. An internationally-recognised exam certificate will show future employers what you've achieved and what you're capable of.
